

Threat Intelligence & Threat Modelling

- Threat Modelling - Threat modeling describes taking data from real-world adversaries and evaluating those attack patterns and techniques against our people, processes, systems, and software. It is important to consider how the compromise of one system in our network might impact others.
- Threat Intelligence - It is the actionable information that an organization has gathered via threat modeling about a valid threat to that organization's success.